Corn borers can be controlled by the use of DDT or Ryanox, says Joseph Hickey, Extension Service, canning crops and vegetable specialist of the University of Maine.

Sound sanitary practices and the removal of infected animals from the herd through the use of the official blood test must continue to play the major role in combating Bang's disease in Maine cattle.

Supt. Christie Delegate To Annual NEA Meeting

Donald Christie, superintendent of Bethel schools, has been named as a delegate from Oxford County to the 88th annual meeting of the National Education Association, scheduled to be held in St. Louis, July 2-7. Mr. Christie will leave for St. Louis on Friday.

The Assembly, representing a record membership of the organization, will be the largest in the history of the Association. Approximately 3,500 delegates chosen by state and local associations—one delegate for a prescribed number of members—are expected in attendance. Delegates will be present from every state and from the territories of Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico to participate in the discussion of problems confronting the teaching profession and the educational welfare of children.

Sectional meetings will be devoted to standards for teacher preparation, the development of moral and spiritual values in public school education, mental health in our schools, relations of school and public, the administration of rural education, the effect of television, radio, comic books and other mass media upon the health and cultural life of American children. Leaders of the profession and outstanding representatives of lay groups will address the convention.

Roads were washed slightly and a few limbs blown from trees during several showers Saturday afternoon.

The new dump at the town farm is being cleared. A road will be built from the main highway and fenced before the dump is ready for use.

Dr. and Mrs. O'Neill Robertson have returned to Cadillac, Penna., after a visit with his mother, Mrs. Mabel Robertson. Mrs. Robertson returned to Pennsylvania with them.

Those from Bethel attending the American Legion convention at Waterville from Friday to Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dexter, Mrs. Frances Bennett, Mrs. E. O. Donahue, Charles Bartlett and Roderick McMillin.

Surveys show that there are spruce budworms to nearly all parts of Maine although they're not yet numerous in most areas. Already damage done by budworms to the spruce forests in Ontario and Quebec runs into millions of dollars, and the seriously infected area is spreading toward Maine.

Delegates to the conference are drawn from many occupational fields. AGREE TO MAINTAIN DUMP-FIX FOUNTAIN AT SPECIAL MEETING

The usual small attendance was a feature of the special meeting of the Bethel Village Corporation Monday evening, but a thorough discussion was given the three articles for which the meeting was called.

They voted to maintain a dump on the town farm property and to raise $100 for its maintenance the rest of the year. The distance from the village caused some concern but there seemed to be a feeling that an arrangement for rubbish transportation would develop if needed.

The question of more money for the park commission was considered at some length, as it concerned the repair of the fountain on the Common. Due to the lack of permanent repairs and several water shortages, the fountain has been out of operation for long periods in recent years. $150 was raised for this purpose.

PRINCE E. MCGINLEY

Prince E. McGinley was found dead in his home on Binko Hill Wednesday afternoon. He had returned Monday morning from Winn, where he attended his brother's funeral. He was found lying on the floor by Herbert Bean of Auburn, a friend who had brought him home Monday. It is understood Bean called at the house yesterday after noticing a suit case still outside the door. It is believed Mr. McGinley had been dead two days.

The case was investigated by Deputy Sheriff Albert Grover of Bethel and Medical Examiner Dr. D. M. Stewart of South Paris.

Mr. McGinley was born in Springfield, Maine, 71 years ago. He had lived in Bethel about 10 years and had been employed in local saw mills. He is survived by a nephew, Harold McGinley, of Whitefield, N. H.

There will be prayers by Rev. David Hickland at the grave at the York Cemetery at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.

We are again grateful to Mrs. Kimball for the use of the beach and to Roderick McMillin for his bus service. Also for the beach patrol introduced by Mrs. Noyes. However, there is an urgent need for more volunteers to spread the duty around. The more who will help the less each will have to do. In fact, if enough report, no one person will need to serve more than once a week.

THE AMERICAN WAY

By A Dam Site

On April 29, 1950, the officers of the CIO Utility Workers Union of America made a report on their attitude toward Government invasion of the Public Utility field, which was adopted by its convention in session at New York City. This report read in part:

"Too often our members take the attitude that these projects are far removed and will only affect a small portion of the country. They must be made aware of the fact that if some of the people in Government are permitted to continue we will soon have authorities, not elected but appointed, who will constitute a super government with control of practically all the electric power in the nation."

Twelve days later, on May 11, 1950, President Truman took the opposite tack at the dedication of Grand Coulee Dam. Said he:

"The private power lobby and other people who have selfish interests to maintain, say the Columbia Valley Administration would be a 'superstate'. Of course, that is not true."

Now back to the CIO report: "We know from experience that our members employed by Government agencies such as the REA and by municipalities who run their own light and power business, work under conditions inferior to those enjoyed by our members employed in private industry."

While on this point Mr. Truman said the following at Grand Coulee Dam: "We have already met this opposition in building Federal projects. And the people have met the same opposition in localities where they wanted to establish local power agencies, such as Public Utility Districts and REA co-ops."

And here follows some more of the CIO report: "This creeping paralysis of nationalization of the industry cannot be laughed off. Some advocates of the Government's capture into the business of producing, distributing and selling electric power, attempt to excuse it on the basis that electricity is a by-product of flood control, navigation, irrigation, and related matters. These projects are admittedly the responsibility of Government. But the distribution and direct sale to the consumer in competition with the private utility companies is a big step toward Socialism."

In what would seem to be a rebuttal, the Man from Missouri in his dedication speech said: "We have embarked on and over the country, on the task of fully developing our resources for all the people. This is a job that will take many years to complete. It will require sound and careful planning. . . . Finally, we will still have to fight those who imagine that every progressive action is another step down that famous last mile to Socialism."

Then, the CIO report issued its warning: "Control of the Electric Industry is the key to control of the major industries of the nation, the control of transportation, mining, agriculture and all basic industry."

And out at the Dam Site, Harry laughed this off as he expressed an opposite opinion: "The benefits of public investment must be passed on to the people whose tax money

THE CHIPMUNK WHO FOUND COMPLETE SECURITY

(Reprinted from the Orange Disc, the magazine of the Gulf Oil Companies.)

Once upon a time a young chipmunk named Everett was graduated from college and came home to visit his father, an elderly gentleman who lived under an oak log near Covington, Ky.

The first night he was home, Everett swaggered down the tunnel into the burrow dining room and helped himself to a big meal of his father's choicest seeds. Then he selected one of his father's best cigars, a full inch long and all Havana.

"It's nice to have you home again, son," Mr. Chipmunk said. "Yes," said Everett. "Must be." "But," said Mr. Chipmunk, "I suppose you'll soon be leaving to look for a job."

Everett flicked his cigar ash onto the rug. "Not a chance, Pop. Definitely not a chance. The fact is, I don't like the whole economic system today."

Mr. Chipmunk twitched a whisker ever so slightly. "What's the matter with it, son?" "No security," Everett chirped. "The way I see it, the state ought to take over. Give you a safe job, give you a nice snug, warm place to live, give you plenty of seeds to eat, give you free medical care, give you free clothes, give you—"

Mr. Chipmunk gently raised a protesting paw. "Now, just a minute, son. I'm proud of the American system. Lived by it all my life. I've worked hard, managed to save a few seeds every year, and we've not done too badly. The mortgage on our log is fully paid up. I was able to send you through high school and Chipmunk Aggies and in a year or two, I think I can retire."

Everett grinned at him. "Wise up, Pop! Wise up! Why beat your brains out? If the state'll give you everything, what's the sense of carrying all over the forest trying to earn a buck?"

Mr. Chipmunk's tail snapped frantically. "Now listen, son. In the first place, stop calling me Pop. In the second place, you'd find that if you got complete security you'd lose your freedom. If the state were to give you everything, it would control everything. Control your bank and don't I don't like that."

Everett burst out laughing. "That's old timer, stop it. You just want to get the word out that you're a real expert. You checked his father a local boy across the bridge. Say, sport, how about sending me the car tonight? Big dance going on down in the meadow."

Mr. Chipmunk reached into his pocket for the legs. "Everett, stop it. These benefits must not be diverted for private profit. There you have it. The CIO comes out four-square for private ownership and enterprise. The President advocates nationalization of the Power and Light Industry."

The report adopted by CIO makes sense, the speech of the President makes sense. Mr. Chipmunk's words are that the American public will line up with the CIO in its fight to save the public utility industry from being swallowed up by Government, despite the fact that the socialistic something or other the Executive dismissed out there by the Dam Site son. AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The meeting of Munt-Allen Unit, American Legion Auxiliary, was held at the Legion Rooms Tuesday evening with Past President Margaret B. Baker presiding. It was voted to give $10 to help on the 4th of July celebration being sponsored by the Legion. It was reported that Mrs. Carrie French was ill, and that the quilt was nearly finished.

Reports of delegates to the convention at Waterville were given. It was reported that Oxford County received third prize in color guards in the parade at the convention. Our poppy chairman, Mrs. Selma Chapman, received $2.50 on her report for the past year. Following the meeting a penny sale was held for both the Unit and Legion.

In cars these days. You can't be too careful. "Don't worry about this lad, Pop. I can drive circles around any little old rabbit that ever came down the path."

Next morning at 7 o'clock the phone rang beside Mr. Chipmunk's bed. "Sorry to bother you, sir," said a voice, "but your boy had an accident last night. Smashed up a couple of rabbits in a convertible. Frankly, sir, he'd been drinking. We had to put him in jail."

"I'll be right over," Mr. Chipmunk said tensely. Twenty minutes later Mr. Chipmunk arrived at the jail, a formidable structure the chipmunks had built by inverting an iron wash tub and imbedding the rim in solid rock. The Sheriff led him to Everett's cell. Everett was alternately yelling and gnawing on the bars. "Lemme out!" he growled. "Lemme out of this place!"

"Mr. Chipmunk stared sadly at his son for a moment. Then, suddenly, he gave a little chuckle. "What's funny?" Everett screamed. "Get me out of here!"

Mr. Chipmunk put a paw through the bars and patted Everett's head. "Tell me, son," he asked, "are they keeping you snug and warm?"

"Sure, but—"

"Are they giving you enough seeds to eat?"

"Sure, but—"

"Are they giving you free medical attention?"

"Medical attention, he says! Get me out!"

And I dare say the good Sheriff will find a safe, easy job for you on the rockpile. Am I right, Sheriff?"

"Right," said the Sheriff. "And I suppose that the Sheriff will even give you a free suit of clothes, a little number with horizontal stripes?"

Everett looked aghast at his father. "Cut the comedy, Pop!" he roared. "Get me out of this place!"

"No, son," said Mr. Chipmunk. "I'd like you to stay right here for a few days. I think you'll find it a rewarding experience."

"Why?" Everett screamed. "Tell me why, Pop!"

"Because, my boy," Mr. Chipmunk said, "I'll give you a very good idea what it's like to get complete security from the state."

Mr. Chipmunk winced at the Sheriff, put on his hat, and walked out of the jail.

ELEANOR GORDON GUILD

The Eleanor Gordon Guild met Wednesday evening, June 28, at Beatrice Lowell's with Mrs. Mary Philbrick as co-hostess.

The food sale netted $21.57. Mrs. Hope Parsons and Mrs. Mary Angoveine will be hostesses at the next meeting, July 12.

FARMERS AND THE TAFT-HARTLEY LAW

The debt owed by farmers to the Taft-Hartley labor law is clearly shown in a report issued by the major producers of potatoes on the recent 73-day strike at their Carlsbad, N. M., properties.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan was not speaking idly when he warned the House Agriculture Committee that the strike bid fair to deprive farmers of fertilizers vitally needed for spring plantings and that production had to be resumed immediately if a serious crisis was to be averted. It was the Taft-Hartley law, vilified and hated by officials of major labor unions, that enabled potato production to be resumed.

The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, which called this unnecessary and disruptive strike, has been expelled from the CIO for allowing Communists to dominate its activities. The union sought to prevent employees in two non-striking unions from going to work in fulfillment of their contracts. It engaged in mass picketing and prevented freedom of passage to and from the plants. Its threats and intimidations were directed against those of its own members who became aware that they were being exploited and sought to return to work.

Finally, the injunctive processes of the Taft-Hartley Act brought an end to the turmoil created by the Communist-dominated union. They were applied after the fullest investigation by the National Labor Relations Board and hearings in the courts, and because of their use members of non-striking unions were able to earn wages that otherwise would have been denied them.

Let those who say that the Taft-Hartley Act is not needed study this bitter, destructive strike. They will see factual evidence to the contrary, and will find overwhelming proof that the labor interest can be preserved by aid of present laws.

Nobody's Business

A while ago we received a contribution for this column complaining of smoke and fine sawdust in the air in the vicinity of Railroad Street. Trying to be fair in the matter we find that at times the complaint is justified, and we also find that a finer mesh screen which will soon be installed on the incinerator may lessen the cause for the complaint.

We can easily imagine the perturbed housewives of 50 years ago in that vicinity, who suffered with the smoke and occasional sparks from the wood-burning locomotives, and later when the little coal burners strained to start their loads going westward from Bethel station. But it is likely they appreciated the advantages their community enjoyed by having the railroad here instead of having the inconveniences of the other villages north and south, which still depended on the horse and buggy stages and tote teams.

In many ways our town is still in an enviable position -- a fact which should be acknowledged by all of us. Of all the businesses in Bethel, all depending on either the hardwood or softwood timber natural supply here, there is not one which has asked for a subsidy from the town. Every one is operated in the independent American way, which eventually seems to be best for the employees, operators and townspeople.

How fortunate is Bethel -- untroubled by threats of strikes, or appeals for contributions and abated taxes, or vile odors of the paper industry! Surely the smoke could be worse!

The quietness, neatness and beauty of Bethel and the surrounding countryside. The cool nights here remind him of his home in the mountain region of Puerto Rico. He finds the scenery, too, similar in many respects except that instead of pine woods, Puerto Rico has coffee groves. Mr. Villalobos also stated that the only thing he misses is the Puerto Rican way of preparing coffee. He has sent home for some of his own special blend of coffee which he intends to introduce to the other delegates.
